From the President

Welcome to the 2016 Callbook, containing the callsigns and licence addresses of almost fifteen thousand Australian Radio Amateurs.

One of the great things about Amateur Radio as a hobby is that it's constantly changing. For home constructors and experimenters, contesters, or just Sunday afternoon operators, each year brings a new technology, new challenges and new possibilities.

Unlike popular social media platforms like Facebook and Twitter etc., Amateur Radio offers participants a great sense of technical achievement, especially when some new contraption crackles into life, or when you bag that elusive new country for one of the operating awards on offer.

Maybe that technological challenge is why Amateur Radio is growing so strongly in nations like Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and China, to name a few, where there is a strong emphasis on science and technology.

Although Amateur numbers are pretty stable in Australia, we are seeing change in our Licensing and regulation arrangements. During 2016-2017 the Australian Government will implement the Spectrum Review recommendations, held in 2014-15 by the Department of Communications together with the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA).

The current apparatus, class and spectrum licensing regimes will be replaced with a new single licence type based on a set of key parameters, such as frequencies, geographical details, rights to renewal, terms for variation or revocation, together with price and payment methods. At this time the details of the new licensing system are not clear, but the WIA will be working closely with government and the ACMA to ensure the best possible outcome for Radio Amateurs.

It is also possible that the WIA may be able to play a greater role in the future administration of Amateur Radio, but those possibilities are also unclear at this time. In preparation the WIA has embarked on an evaluation and restructure of its core business activities, vitally necessary if we are going to improve member services and be ready to accept future opportunities as they arise.

This type of change is difficult, and coupled with our international activities pursuing a case for a new Amateur allocation at 5 MHz including sending a representative to the 2015 World Radio Conference in Geneva (WRC-15), and the IARU Region-3 meeting in Bali this year where we also need to be represented, this is turning out to be a very expensive year. So, who said "it never rains but it pours"?

One thing is for sure, we need everyone to join the WIA so we are in the best possible position to represent Australian Radio Amateurs through this period of great change. If you're already a member, thanks – I really mean that. If you are not a member of the national WIA please consider joining – it's only through membership of the National organisation that you contribute to these vital activities.

While we all wait for this to play out, enjoy your hobby and see you on air. You might catch me on 40 metres AM, yes I know I'm a luddite!

The Amateur's Code

The Radio Amateur is...

CONSIDERATE… never knowingly operates in such a way as to lessen the pleasure of others.

LOYAL… offers loyalty, encouragement and support to other amateurs, local clubs, and the national organisation, through which Amateur Radio is represented nationally and internationally.

PROGRESSIVE… with knowledge abreast of science, a well-built and efficient station, and operation above reproach.

FRIENDLY… slow and patient operating when requested; friendly advice and counsel to the beginner; kindly assistance, cooperation and consideration for the interests of others. These are the hallmarks of the amateur spirit.

BALANCED… radio is an avocation, never interfering with duties owed to family, job, school or community.

PATRIOTIC… station and skills always ready for service to country and community.

The original Amateur's Code was written by Paul M Segal, W9EEA in 1928.

About The WIA QSL Bureau

General Operation of the WIA QSL Bureau

Bureaus operate in each state and the Northern Territory. There are some differences in their operational methods, but all may be considered to basically follow the guidelines of the IARU.

Bureau operating is a method of handling the incoming QSL cards received from overseas and interstate bureau, as well as for outgoing cards. For outgoing cards the bureau receives cards for on forwarding and sorts them into the respective country order. Usually when an economical posting weight is reach, the package is then posted. Incoming cards for VK amateurs are sorted and filed.

Those amateurs wishing to receive their incoming cards usually make arrangements with their state or territory bureau on the method used to have the cards delivered into their hands. Some pick up cards direct from the bureau sorting place, from their local club, and when arrangements are made the cards are posted to the amateur's address.

Inward and Outward QSL services at the expense of the WIA are provided only for WIA members.

Managers receive every 3 months a listing of all current WIA members. If a person claims to have just become a member but is not listed, the Manager should telephone or email the WIA national office to ask if the person is, in fact, a member.

Because Managers act on behalf of the WIA they should not accept money from either members or non-members as the cost of keeping and auditing adequate accounting records outweighs any benefit.

QSL Service Guidelines for Special Event Stations

A WIA Member is entitled to a free outwards and inwards QSL service. The QSL service is free for special event stations; DXpeditions, IOTAs etc… operated by WIA members or by WIA affiliated Clubs. However, all operators need to be WIA members or the operation needs to be sanctioned by a WIA Affiliated Club.

Inwards QSL cards will continue to be available for non-members at the convenience of the QSL service.

QSL Card Standards

The IARU established a universal standard for QSL card production to improve the handling of cards by volunteers at Bureau offices all around the world, to assist with sorting, packing and posting.

The recommended size should be no larger than 140 mm x 90 mm. It is recommended that paper size should be at least 0.25 mm thick. Copy paper is not deemed suitable and glossy photo paper with inkjet printing also causes issues. Matt photo paper is OK.

To ensure speedy handling by sorters at the Outwards Bureau please assist by following these guidelines:

Cards should be sorted alphabetically (A - Z and 1 to 9) into country order. Do NOT separate the country prefixes with paper, clips, rubber bands etc. Rubber bands should only be used to keep a large stack of cards together.

Please send outwards QSL cards at regular intervals to assist volunteer sorters and ensure a steady flow of cards.

QSL Managers

Members should deal with the Inwards QSL Bureau at the address listed for their area and the national Outwards Bureau at the address listed below.

Please use the following email addresses as a point of contact for all queries and correspondence regarding your state QSL service.

VK1	ACT	vk1bureau@wia.org.au
VK2	NSW	vk2bureau@wia.org.au
VK3	VIC	vk3bureau@wia.org.au

Inwards QSL

If a WIA member makes an arrangement with the local QSL Manager for their cards to be sent annually, then WIA will meet the cost of forwarding any cards received for that WIA member at their address on the membership list once a year. If, because of the number of cards and storage constraints an Inwards QSL Manager wishes to forward cards more than once in a year to a particular member, and there is no significant cost difference as a result of doing so, the WIA will meet also meet that cost.

Members requiring more frequent card distribution should make arrangements with the Manager to collect the cards from the Manager.

WIA members who are members of an affiliated club may either directly or through their club request that their cards be sent to them at their club. Inward QSL Managers shall send WIA member cards to their club at such times as are economic having regard to the number of cards involved, but at least once a year. The WIA will meet the cost of sending the cards to the clubs.

Members not requiring cards should notify their area QSL Manager directly.

Inward QSL Managers should retain non-members cards for at least one year before disposing of them, and should make available cards for collection by or on behalf of non-members in a manner convenient to the Manager.

The national postal address for all Inwards QSL is:

National Inwards QSL Bureau
PO Box 2040
Bayswater Vic 3153 Australia

Outwards QSL

Members should send their cards sorted in DX CC country order to the WIA Outwards QSL Bureau addressed as follows:

WIA Outwards QSL Bureau
PO Box 66
Boolaroo NSW 2284

Affiliated clubs may collect cards on behalf of their WIA members and forward them in reasonable sized batches to the WIA Outwards QSL Bureau at the above address. The Outwards Bureau will confirm the WIA membership of the club members.

Non-members cards will not be handled.

Until an appointment is made for a new National QSL Bureau Coordinator, please contact the WIA National office if you have any questions relating to the QSL service.

WIA Functional Committees

The WIA is a membership organisation with a very wide range of complex functions and member services. Core functions and services are administrative in nature (general administrative functions, membership services, examination and callsign management, financial etc…) and are performed by salaried staff.

Volunteers perform a diverse range of highly specialist functions (ACMA liaison, Frequency Coordination, Standards liaison, Interference issues, technical support and training and assessment etc.). These volunteers provide the majority of member services, however they have been loosely organised and often overstretched.

The new committee system attempts to structure the WIA's non-core activities into 10 broad functional areas, each comprising a team of volunteers under the direction of the WIA Board. This structure is intended to spread the workload on our volunteers, improve communications between members and the WIA Board, improve services to members, and encourage more people to become involved in the WIA.

ALARA (Australian Ladies Amateur Radio Association)

ALARA's mission is to encourage women's interest and active participation in amateur radio.

ALARA was formed in 1975 by a small group of Australian ladies interested in amateur radio. Membership has now grown to over 200, with many Australian members sponsoring overseas YLs into ALARA. The term "YL" stands for "young lady" – regardless of age.

There are a range of membership options for joining ALARA or receiving the ALARA newsletter. You can even sponsor overseas friends into ALARA and become a member of a DX association in return.

ALARAmeet is a wonderful way to meet other YLs of our organisation and their OMs are welcome too. Approximately 80 people attend our meets now and YLs have come from England, Sweden, America, Germany and a big group from New Zealand.

The ALARA award is available to YLs, OMs and SWLs contacting ALARA members on or after 30th June 1975. All licensed operators throughout the world are invited to participate.

For more details please visit the ALARA web site at: http://www.alara.org.au/

Amateur Television (ATV)

Television is one of the areas of activity where the amateur operator can still home brew some of the required equipment. With the advent of relatively cheap high quality colour cameras and television sets, this sector of the hobby is affordable. Various kits are available in Australia which makes the acquisition of some special components and construction a little easier.

Most modern television sets tune continuously over a very wide bandwidth and hence are suitable for direct reception of analogue ATV on 444.25 MHz and in some areas of Australia, 426.25 MHz. A good high gain antenna with low loss coaxial cable is essential. Many of the capital cities and a few provincial cities have ATV Repeaters which enable a much wider coverage than with simplex (point to point) operation.

On 23 cm and above, operation is FM and a cheap second hand analogue satellite receiver is required for reception. These receivers are sometimes available at Hamfests and can often be obtained at very low cost. A good pre-amplifier will be needed together with a high gain antenna and low loss coaxial cable. ATV operation can be found on all SHF frequency bands from 70 cm to 10 GHz.

The change over to digital broadcasting in Australia has meant that there are a number of set-top boxes (STB) and TV receivers that can tune to ATV frequencies on the 430-450 MHz band. Note: not all STB and TV's can. A number of amateurs have been working on digital systems and the Melbourne ATV repeater VK3RTV is now exclusively digital output. For more information check the VK3RTV website at www.vk3rtv.com.

Slow Scan Television (SSTV)

Slow Scan Television (SSTV) is a narrow-band (voice spectra) picture transmission method used to receive and transmit static pictures via radio (Source: Wikipedia - 12/7/10). In fact the first pictures of the Apollo 11 landing on the moon were actually transmitted by Slow-Scan techniques beaming a picture back to Earth at the rate of 320 lines at the rate of 10 frames per second.

The techniques for SSTV have improved quite considerably since those early techniques developed for the reception of signals from Space. All that is needed to transmit and receive SSTV is a good, stable sound card and audio lines in and out from your PC and radio. The simplest recommended reception interface would include a 600:600 ohm isolation transformer from the speaker output to the line in on your PC.

Analogue SSTV

Analogue SSTV uses Analogue Frequency Modulation whereby each level of brightness in the source image gets modulated via a shift in frequency between 1500 and 2300Hz depending upon the brightness of the original image. Colour is achieved by sending the brightness of each colour component (red, green or blue) separately (Wikipedia - 12/7/11). A transmission consists of horizontal lines scanned from left to right, building up an image progressively with each scan. A 1200 Hertz synchronization pulse is added so that lines can be correctly assembled at the receiver end. Analogue SSTV is governed by an "encoding scheme" that encodes or decodes the source image for transmission. The main modes of SSTV "encoding" in use include the AVT, Martin, Robot and Scottie modes.

Many digital-mode programs used for modes such as PSK and RTTY (i.e. MixW and DM780) have support built in for receiving SSTV pictures. The most commonly used program for Amateur SSTV transmission and reception is the dedicated SSTV program MMSSTV written by Makoto (Mako) Mori JE3HHT.

Analogue SSTV transmissions can be found on HF frequencies around 3.640MHz LSB, 7.170MHz LSB, 14.230 MHz USB, 21.340MHz USB and 28.680MHz USB. On 2m and 70cm transmissions are commonly found around 145.625 MHz (USB and FM) and 433.775 MHz (USB and FM).

Digital SSTV

Digital SSTV is a recent innovation whereby multi-carrier Orthogonal Frequency Division Multiplexing (OFDM) techniques, based loosely around the Digital Radio Mondiale (DRM) broadcasting protocols as used for commercial Digital Radio Transmissions in Australia, are used to digitally encode and broadcast images and simple data files. The DRM protocol has been adapted to fit within a voice-spectrum bandwidth (up to 2.5KHz) that can easily be modulated and received by standard SSB and FM transceivers.

The most common program in use today is "EasyPal". Development of this program is coordinated by Erik Sunstrup VK4AES.

Analogue slow scan builds up a picture progressively - line by line - until the image is complete. Digital SSTV works on building up enough received digital data from mathematically compressed images to begin rendering pictures. A huge advantage of Digital SSTV is the ability to request retransmission of data segments that have not been received properly in order to build up a high resolution picture. As a result pictures received by digital transmission tend to be far superior in quality than those received via analogue transmission.

Digital SSTV transmissions are usually conducted between 3 - 6KHz higher on HF bands and on the same frequencies as Analogue Transmissions on VHF and UHF. A considerable number of groups operate across Australia are experimenting with this mode, often using FM on 2m and 70cm.

Digital Modes

The Beginnings of Digital Modes

Before the computer there were several modes of transmitting text messages by Radio. The first was the use of Morse Code or CW (Continuous Wave) where the signal was sent letter by letter in a series of coded long and short signal bursts. This was done by hand and an expert could reach a speed of up to 60 words per minute.

CW speeds were increased and skill needs reduced by pre-recording the CW signal on paper tape and playing it at higher speeds to be recorded by the receiving station. Then came the inevitable demand for even faster and more accurate text message transfer, and the teletype machine came into being.

A teletype machine, or teleprinter, was essentially an electric typewriter sending signals down a wire using a five bit code, the Baudot Code. This code restricted the machine initially to 32 characters but with the use of shift keys this could be increased. When a key on the radio teletype keyboard was operated, a specific code was transmitted. At the receiving end, each 5-bit code sequence would cause its corresponding character to be printed.

Teletype came into commercial use in the 1920s. By the 1940s it was the major method of distributing text in the newspaper world.

Radio Teletype (RTTY)

Radio Teletype, or RTTY as it is commonly called today, was in commercial operation in 1932 and is still actively used by amateurs and others today. Developments include the wider use of the 7 bit ASCII Code (American National Standard Code for Information Interchange) to replace the more limited 5 bit Baudot Code. Most HF amateur radio transceivers are equipped to transmit and receive RTTY mode.

Earlier RTTY systems consisted of a a teletype machine, a tone generator and decoder, and a radio. The tone generator converted the digital signal from the teletype machine into audio tones which were then transmitted by the radio. At the receiving station, the signal was fed from the receiver to a decoder, or Terminal Unit, which converted the received tones into DC pulses that were then sent to the teleprinter.

Today such functions can be performed by computers. The bulky and noisy electromechanical systems have been replaced by the computer. The sound card performs the functions of the tone generator and terminal unit, and the computer screen replaces the teleprinter. The use of computers has also allowed the introduction of software able to produce more accurate and speedier communication.

Packet Radio

Packet radio is a development of RTTY, invented in the 1970 by workers at the University of Hawaii. Like RTTY, it is an FSK (frequency shift keying) system, but it differs from RTTY in two respects. The speed of data transfer is much faster than traditional RTTY, and the data is sent in blocks, or "packets" rather than in a continuous stream.

© WIA Callbook 2016

Sending the data in packets allows stations to take turns transmitting, and each is able to check received packets for errors and to send the other station an acknowledgment that each packet has been received error free.

Packet also has the advantage that it can store messages to allow retrieval at a later time.

The mode became very popular in the 1980s, and it is still widely used for transmitting messages and maintaining bulletin boards.

A major application today for amateur packet radio is Automatic Position Reporting System (APRS), where stations use a GPS (Global Positioning System) receiver to transmit their precise geographic location.

Packet radio systems originally used a terminal node controller (TNC), which is a small modem that performs the same functions as an RTTY terminal unit, plus various logic functions such as sorting the message data into packets. Nowadays it is increasingly common to replace the separate TNC with PC software emulation that uses the computer sound card.

PSK and related modes

As is inevitable, experience with packet radio has led to further advances designed to further improve the speed and reliability of data transfer.

Systems such as Pactor and Clover were designed to improve the quality of data sent through potentially noisy radio channels such as are found in long distance HF transmissions.

At present an increasingly popular mode is PSK31, developed by amateur Peter Martinez G3PLX for real time keyboard to keyboard contacts. PSK means Phase Shift Keying, and it is a computer based mode that uses sound cards to generate and decode the signals.

Other digital modes include MFSK (multi frequency shift keying). Unlike RTTY and packet, MFSK modes transmit and decode more than two audio tones (the use of 16 or more tones is quite common). For weak signal work, newer modes like WSJT are able to decode signals that are far below the noise.

With the use of computer sound cards for signal generation and decoding, new digital modes are being developed very rapidly. We can now choose between a variety of different modes to suit a wide range of operating conditions. Different digital modes can be optimised for data speed, reliability, or sensitivity to weak signals.

The development of digital modes has now come full circle, with modes such as QRSS, which is capable of sending CW signals in extremely narrow bandwidths and allowing communication to take place when signals are far too weak to be heard.

Digital Modes for Image Communication

Digital modes have been used for many years for image transmission. The first method used was Facsimile (FAX) which used a mechanism with a rotating drum to scan an image and convert it to a series of audio tones representing the black, white and grey elements of the picture. At the receiving station, a similar machine would use a stylus to burn the image onto a sheet of sensitised paper.

As with other digital modes, the use of mechanical scanners and printers has been replaced by computerised image generation and decoding.

Image transmission became popular in the amateur world back in the 1970s, with the invention of slow-scan television (SSTV). The earliest SSTV systems used video cameras, modified to produce the slow scanning rates that were required to allow pictures to be transmitted within the narrow bandwidth occupied by an SSB transmission. Modern SSTV systems use computer techniques to allow the transmission of full colour images from video cameras, webcams, or digital cameras. As with RTTY and packet, SSTV stations use computer sound cards to generate and decode the audio data that is fed to and from the transceiver.

There is also a long tradition, going back to the 1930s, of amateur fast-scan television activity. The earliest TV transmissions in Australia were made by amateurs, and the mode is still popular today. ATV systems use the same technical standards as broadcast television, so amateur ATV signals can be received on any TV set that is able to tune to their frequencies.

The most recent development in ATV is the use of digital transmission systems such as DVB-T, which is the same system used by broadcast TV stations. As with analog ATV, there are a number of digital set-top boxes on the market that can tune to the frequencies used for ATV.

Digital Voice Communication

Digital audio transmission is the newest aspect of amateur digital transmission. The best known system is D-STAR, which allows digital audio and data to be exchanged either directly between simplex stations or via repeaters. Amateurs are also making use of surplus radios using the APCO digital voice system.

AMSAT – Amateur Satellites

Satellites allow you to greatly increase the range of your VHF/UHF or microwave station. Some carry FM, SSB or CW transponders. Others will allow you to communicate using packet - digital store and forward, to swap pictures or messages, much like e-mail. It is also possible to run modes like SSTV or PSK31. AMSAT operators also have the ability to talk to Astronauts on the Space Shuttle or the International Space Station.

The first question is often, “But isn’t it expensive?”. The FM satellites can be worked with a dual-band hand-held transceiver. A small hand-held Yagi is very helpful, but not essential when getting started. AO51, SO50, ISS and the Space Shuttle are examples of easy to work ‘birds’.

You will need high gain antennas and computer controlled tracking to reliably work some of the SSB birds, such as AO7 and the high orbiting birds when available. Over 60 Oscar satellites have been launched over the years. More are on the drawing board.

AMSAT – www.amsat.org is a worldwide group of Amateur Radio Operators who share a common interest in building, launching and communicating with each other through non-commercial Amateur Radio satellites.

AMSAT-Australia – www.amsat-vk.org , an AMSAT international partner, is a group of Australian amateur radio operators who also share the same common interests. Many of our members also have an interest in other space based communications, including listening to and communicating with the International Space Station, Earth-Moon-Earth (EME), monitoring weather (WX) satellites and other spacecraft.

Membership of AMSAT-Australia is free. AMSAT-Australia operates two monthly nets on various linked repeaters, IRLP and Echolink, including the AMSAT conference server. We also run an HF net which operates in the 80 m and 40 m bands. All amateurs with an interest in amateur radio satellites are welcome to join these nets. AMSAT-Australia members participate via the AMSAT-VK Yahoo group – group.amsat-vk.org. See the website or contact Paul VK2TXT at coordinator@amsat-vk.org for details on the nets and membership.

ARISS (Amateur Radio on International Space Station)

ARISS is an educational program sponsored by NASA, the ARRL, and AMSAT and is designed to stimulate the minds of students. As an Amateur you too can become involved by approaching your local primary or high school and asking them if their students would be interested in speaking with an astronaut on the ISS as it circles the Earth at 27,000 kph.

To be assured of a contact an application must be filled out and submitted. The ARISS team will then process your application and notify you when the event will take place.

The actual linkup can be done one of two ways, by setting up a complete amateur station or via a telebridge linkup at the school. In the latter case ARISS provide all the necessary equipment free of charge and has proven very popular. The ARISS program is not only educational but is a great way to introduce our hobby of Amateur Radio to students.

APRS (Automatic Position Reporting System)

APRS is a packet communications protocol used for disseminating live data to everyone on a network in real time. It provides a fully featured automatic vehicle location and status reporting system, weather monitoring system, messaging system and much more. This makes it perfect for the real-time tracking needs in an emergency or special event where you want to know the position of key people and assets.

APRS was designed by and is copyright to Bob Bruninga WB4APR. It was introduced at the 1992 TAPR/ARRL Digital Communications Conference.

APRS can be monitored directly from the internet at www.findu.com. Or you can set up your own station using a PC running UI-View www.uiview.org, a 2 metre FM radio listening to 145.175 MHz and a TNC or sound card.

If you don't have access to the extensive APRS VHF network you can connect UI-View directly to the internet to send & receive APRS data. If you are mobile and out of range of the APRS VHF network you can use the APRS World Wide HF Network on 10147.6 kHz USB or the International Space Station's APRS digital repeater.

Mobile APRS operation is achieved by setting up an APRS Tracker in your vehicle. A tracker is the APRS name for a GPS, TinyTrack or OpenTrack TNC, and a VHF radio. These devices connected together generate transmitted position reports. For the more adventurous there is the Kenwood TM-D710, TM-D700 & TH-D7 APRS ready radios. If you have a D-STAR radio run DPRS positioning you can also be seen on the APRS network.

As well as tracking, APRS provides the mobile operator with other functions such as APRS messaging, email, Voice Alert, SMS, weather information such as forecasts and warnings, local repeater information and an Emergency SOS beacon.

Internet connected gateway stations (IGates) link the APRS VHF & HF network to the APRS Internet System (APRS-IS), which serves as a worldwide, high-bandwidth backbone for APRS data. The best way to obtain details on APRS operation is to visit the Australian web site and join the VK APRS email conference. For details of local ARPS activities follow the links from the main web site. The official Australian APRS site is www.aprs.net.au From there you can obtain more information and access state based APRS web sites.

ARDF (Amateur Radio Direction Finding)

ARDF is sometimes called Foxhunting or RadioSport. It is very similar to Orienteering – but uses direction finding equipment to locate radio transmitters rather than navigating to known points on a map. It can be enjoyed at any age.

ARDF events range from a 'hidden transmitter hunt' at hamfests to International Championships, but all involve the attempt to track down a transmitter by its emitted signal.

Equipment. A basic receiver and directional aerial is all that is required. An attenuator helps determine signal strength and how close you are. This unit is called a sniffer. A pair of headphones helps.

Frequencies. Events are normally run on either HF (3.5 MHz/80 m) or VHF (144 MHz/2 m) The receivers and tactics differ for each band. The 80 m ARDF event is normally easier and better suited for beginners. The 2 m ARDF event is more difficult. Reflections and signal strength are more dependent upon terrain and can fool even the experts. Equipment for this band is usually more complex.

Currently in Melbourne, ARDF events are run 4-6 times per year plus a number of informal events run for radio clubs, the Scout Association and similar bodies. A copy of the schedule of planned events is available from: http://www.ardf.org.au

More information about ARDF can be found on the internet, a good place to start would be http://www.ardf.org.au Those without Net access can write to the Federal ARDF Coordinator PO Box 2042 Bayswater Victoria 3153.

Amateur Radio Voice Over Internet

IRLP The Internet Radio Linking Project

IRLP is a system to link repeaters and simplex links using the Internet as a connecting medium. To access IRLP, you require an ordinary FM transceiver, with a DTMF keypad for controlling the IRLP links. No computer is required, and IRLP is designed for radio access only. IRLP supports node-node linking and reflector (multi-node conference servers) linking. IRLP reflectors 9500, 9588 and 9559 are the recommended reflectors for general national traffic and ragchewing.

To access IRLP, first, you need to be within range of an IRLP node. All IRLP nodes are listed at http://status.irlp.net. Once you are within range of an IRLP node, you announce your callsign and then key in the 4 digit node number of the destination node number to make the connection. While connected, you talk as normal, except for leaving a 3 second pause or longer between overs, to allow time for others to break in. To terminate the connection, hold down the PTT and press "73".

If you run into difficulties with a particular system, you can contact the node owner using http://status.irlp.net and clicking on the node number in thelist.

For more information about IRLP:

Information about the Adelaide reflector (IRLP 9550-9559) can be found at http://ref9550.vkradio.com.

EchoLink

EchoLink is a Windows based system to link repeaters and simplex links using the Internet. In addition, EchoLink also allows you to access other EchoLink nodes directly from an Internet connected PC. EchoLink supports both node-node links and multi-node conferences. EchoLink conferences AUSSIE (node number 95092) and VK3JED (node number 42840) are the recommended conferences for rag chewing and general national traffic.

You can access EchoLink over the radio in a manner similar to IRLP. The main differences are that the node numbers are 4 - 6 digits long, and to disconnect, you use "#" (to disconnect the last connection to the local node) or "##" (to disconnect all connected nodes). Many, but not all RF links are listed at http://www.echolink.org/links.jsp. To access EchoLink from your PC, you need a suitable headset and to download and install the EchoLink application, and follow the instructions on the EchoLink web site. There are also third party EchoLink clients for Linux, Mac OS X and Java based systems.

For further information about EchoLink: http://www.echolink.org for general EchoLink information and to download the software for installation on your PC.

http://www.echolink.org/links.jsp - lists many RF links; use http://groups.yahoo.com/group/echolink to discuss EchoLink with other amateurs and get information. or email vk3jed@vkradio.com.

D-STAR

D-STAR is a fully digital integrated voice and data network for VHF/UHF operation. D-STAR features two modes of operation, both of which can be used on simplex, D-STAR digital repeaters and worldwide Internet gateways. These modes are DD mode, which is a 128 kbps data only mode for 23 cm, and DV, which comprises simultaneous digital voice and low speed data in a 4.8 kbps data stream. To operate on D-STAR, you need a D-STAR capable radio. Alternatively, the DV Dongle can be used for voice operation on the D-STAR network.

D-STAR can be used for voice, DPRS (similar to APRS, but on the DV data channel), keyboard to keyboard chat and general data transmission. Both voice and data can be transmitted around the world via the gateway network.

JOTA

Jamboree On The Air (JOTA) is a Scout and Guide activity utilising amateur radio in order to contact Scouts and Guides in other places. JOTA, along with JOTI (Jamboree On The Internet) is an annual event occurring on the third full weekend in October. JOTA-JOTI is a worldwide event, with some 500,000 participants. The success of this event is made possible by the assistance given by thousands of amateur radio Operators. Information about JOTA-JOTI in Australia can be found at www.scouts.com.au

Meteor Scatter

Meteor Scatter uses ionised trails from meteors to reflect your VHF signal. The FSK441 mode on the WSJT program (see below) has made meteor scatter much more popular on 2 metres with regular contacts in the range 700 to 2000 km. The equipment required for 2 metre meteor scatter is a computer interfaced to an SSB transceiver and about 100 watts to a 6 to 10 element Yagi.

Activity sessions are held each Saturday and Sunday morning on 144.230 MHz between 0700 and 0800 local time in NSW and Victoria. After the sessions a call-back is held on 40 metres around 7083 kHz and all interested are encouraged to join in and ask questions.

Contact: Rex Moncur VK7MO rmoncur@bigpond.net.au

"Moonbounce" (Earth-Moon-Earth)

Make the ultimate of long distance (DX) contacts by bouncing your signal off the moon.

Once this form of communication was confined to those who could erect large antennae and run a lot of power, but technology advances have made this mode available for those with quite moderate installations.

The ability to generate power in excess of 100 watts on frequencies from 23 cm and upwards, along with the availability of very low cost very low noise receive preamplifiers, have even provided SSB communication with dishes as small at 4 metres.

Software advances,and the use of the Internet, have also provided a means of exchanging minimal data to effect a 'QSO'.

Contacts on frequencies as low as 28 MHz and as high as 47 GHz continue to prove an avenue for those wishing to experiment with one of the most reliable propagation mediums. For further information 'Google the web' or for local information contact Doug McArthur VK3UM tikaluna@bigpond.com

Summits On The Air (SOTA)

Summits On The Air (SOTA) is an award scheme for radio amateurs and shortwave listeners that encourages portable operation in mountainous areas. The original SOTA concept was devised by G3WGV and developed with G3CWI. SOTA has been carefully designed to make participation possible for everyone. There are awards for Activators (those who ascend to the summits) and Chasers (who either operate from home, a local hilltop or are even Activators on other summits).

SOTA is now fully operational in many countries across the world. Each country has its own Association which defines the recognised SOTA summits within that Association. In Australia, we have Associations based on each State. SOTA is operational in all VK call areas except VK0.

Each valid summit is listed on the SOTA online database, which also records the date from which the summit is valid.

Each summit earns the Activators and Chasers a score which is related to the height of the summit. Certificates are available for various scores, leading to the prestigious "Mountain Goat" and "Shack Sloth" trophies. An Honour Roll for Activators and Chasers is maintained at the SOTA online database.

SOTA is designed to be compatible with other mountain users. The SOTA website (http://www.sota.org.uk/) is a very good source of information and has links to the database, to the various Associations, the Rules and Guidelines, the individual Association Reference Manuals and the SOTA Shop, where you can order certificates, trophies and flags and other merchandise.

Another useful site for Australians interested in SOTA is the Yahoo Group SOTA_Australia (http://au.groups.yahoo.com/group/SOTA_Australia/). There are many resources on the group site, plus much discussion about all things SOTA in VK, including advance notice of activation plans.

If you wish to become involved, look at the sites above and search for SOTA blogs created by many of the Activators to record their activities. Also look at the SOTA Watch site (http://www.sotawatch.org/index.php), where you can see recent Spots (announcements of active operators), as well as Alerts which announce the plans for upcoming operations.

As the rules require the final entry to the summit to be via non-motorised means, most Activators are running QRP. On most summits, the site is quite quiet, so good reports are usually exchanged. Join in the fun – be it from the shack, the local park, the motor vehicle or out on a summit.

Travellers' Net

The Australian Travellers Net operates 365 days of the year to provide a mantle of safety for Amateurs travelling long distances often in remote areas of Australia. This service is also available to Amateurs that are Maritime Mobile. Phone numbers are available to anyone who wishes to send a message to travellers or inquire about their whereabouts. Urgent traffic will be given priority over Stations checking in.

If you are trying to contact a traveller directly please call via the net control then QSY to a clear frequency. During call backs the list of logged stations will be read back by net control, he will then call for any late check in and invite stations that may have messages for travellers to call now. Stations with traffic should then QSY to a clear frequency. Relay stations will then be invited to call for stations that may not have been heard by net control.

There are two nets in operation being 14.116MHz & 21.185 MHz

- The 14.116 MHz is manned from 0200 UTC daily for check ins. Call Back Time is 0300 UTC
- The 21.185 MHz is manned from 0400 UTC daily for check ins. Call Back Time is 0500 UTC

The Aim of the Travellers Net:

1) Any urgent or priority traffic or relays to and from travellers as required.
2) A time and frequency for travellers to meet (a central get together point) and arrange to QSY up the band.
3) A terminal point (phone contact numbers) where messages can be left by family or friends to relay to travellers when they call in or an inquiry from family or friends as to a travellers last known location.
4) A known time and frequency where a traveller can guarantee contact in the event of a breakdown. It is assumed that all travellers driving in remote areas will have sufficient food and water to sustain themselves for a number of days.
5) A relay service between travellers when required.

There is no formal registration required, simply call in whenever you have the time and inclination.

WSJT

A computer program for weak signal VHF/ UHF Digital communications. The program may be downloaded at: http://physics.princeton.edu/pulsar/K1JT/

The program includes modes of FSK441 for meteor scatter (see earlier item) and JT65 for tropo-scatter and EME. The equipment required is a computer interfaced to an SSB transceiver. 100 watts on 2 metres and a single 10 element Yagi is sufficient to work the larger overseas stations via EME and will allow tropo-scatter contacts up to about 700 km. The JT65 mode is proving useful for EME up into the microwave region with low power EME contacts on 1296 MHz with around 2 to 3 metre dishes.

Additional protocols include JT6M for ionospheric scatter and JT4 for EME and tropospheric propagation on microwave bands.

WICEN (Wireless Institute Civil Emergency Network)

Each state has its own WICEN which works with the emergency Services, either directly or through another agency. WICEN has seen service in floods, bushfires and cyclones. Its members practise by providing communications during car rallies, sports events, canoe marathons and such. Some formal training sessions are provided.

The International Telegraph Union (ITU)

History

The International Telegraph Union (ITU) was established on 17 May 1865.

At the 1932 Madrid Conference, the Union decided to change the name of the Union to International Telecommunication Union. The new name, which came into effect on 1 January 1934, was chosen to properly reflect the full scope of the Union's responsibilities, which by this time covered all forms of wireline and wireless communication.

Under an agreement with the newly created United Nations, it became a UN specialised agency on 15 October 1947, and the headquarters of the organisation were transferred in 1948 from Bern to Geneva

In 1992, the Union was streamlined into three Sectors, corresponding to its three main areas of activity Telecommunication Standardisation (ITU-T), Radiocommunication (ITU-R) and Telecommunication Development (ITU-D). The new system also introduced a regular cycle of conferences to help the Union rapidly respond to new technological advances.

Objective

The objective of ITU-R is, in particular, to "maintain and extend international cooperation among all the Member States of the Union for the improvement and rational use of telecommunications of all kinds".

ITU-R

The specific role of ITU-R is as follows. ITU-R shall:

- effect allocation of bands of the radiofrequency spectrum, the allotment of radio frequencies and the registration of radio frequency assignments and of any associated orbital position in the geostationary satellite orbit in order to avoid harmful interference between radio stations of different countries;
- coordinate efforts to eliminate harmful interference between radio stations of different countries and to improve the use made of radio-frequencies and of the geostationary-satellite orbit for radiocommunication services.

Each of the three ITU Sectors works through conferences and meetings, where members negotiate the agreements which serve as the basis for the operation of global telecommunication services.

Study groups made up of experts drawn from leading telecommunication organisations worldwide carry out the technical work of the Union, preparing the detailed studies that lead to authoritative ITU Recommendations.

ITU-R draws up the technical characteristics of terrestrial and space-based wireless services and systems, and develops operational procedures. It also undertakes the important technical studies which serve as a basis for the regulatory decisions made at radiocommunication conferences.

In ITU-T, experts prepare the technical specifications for tele-communication systems, networks and services, including their operation, performance and maintenance.

ITU-D experts focus their work on the preparation of recommendations, opinions, guidelines, handbooks, manuals and reports, which provide decision-makers in developing countries with `best business practices' relating to a host of issues ranging from development strategies and policies to network management.

Each Sector also has its own Bureau which ensures the implementation of the Sector's work plan and coordinates activities on a day-to-day basis.

Membership of ITU is open to governments, which may join the Union as Member States. In addition Non-government organisations such as Telecommunications Carriers, Equipment manufacturers, Satellite consortiums, Research and Development organisations and International and Regional Telecommunication organisations, can join ITU as Sector Members.

The IARU is a Sector member in both ITU-R and ITU-D as an International Organisation.

Radiocommunication Conference

World Radiocommunication Conferences (WRC) are held every four years. It is the job of WRC to review, and, if necessary, revise the Radio Regulations and the international treaty governing the use of the radio-frequency spectrum. Revisions are made on the basis of an agenda determined by the ITU Council, which takes into account recommendations made by previous world radiocommunication conferences.

Only Member States can make proposals or vote at a WRC.

The general scope of the agenda of world radiocommunication conferences is established four to six years in advance, with the final agenda set by the ITU Council two years before the conference, with the concurrence of a majority of Member States.

Under the terms of the ITU Constitution, a WRC can:

- revise the Radio Regulations and any associated frequency assignment and allotment plans.
- address any radiocommunication matter of worldwide character.
- give instructions to the Radio Regulations Board and the Radiocommunication Bureau, and review their activities.
- determine Questions for study by the Radiocommunication Assembly and the Sector's study groups in preparation for future radiocommunication conferences.

International Amateur Radio Union (IARU)

The International Amateur Radio Union was founded in April 1925 in Paris.

The objectives of the IARU are the protection, promotion, and advancement of the Amateur and Amateur-Satellite Services within the framework of regulations established by the International Telecommunication Union, and to provide support to Member-Societies in the pursuit of these objectives at the national level, with special reference to the following:

a) representation of the interests of amateur radio at and between conferences and meetings of international telecommunications organizations;

b) encouragement of agreements between national amateur radio societies on matters of common interest;

c) enhancement of amateur radio as a means of technical self-training for young people;

d) promotion of technical and scientific investigations in the field of radiocommunication;

e) promotion of amateur radio as a means of providing relief in the event of natural disasters;

f) encouragement of international goodwill and friendship;

g) support of Member-Societies in developing amateur radio as a valuable national resource, particularly in developing countries; and

h) development of amateur radio in those countries not represented by Member-Societies.

Through the efforts of several generations of internationally minded volunteers the IARU has continued to grow in numbers, stature, and influence. Today there are national member societies in more than 160 countries and separate territories, including almost 140 Member States of the ITU.

There are three regional organizations of the IARU, corresponding to the ITU Regions. The first of these regional organisations to be formed was in Region 1 in 1950 followed by Region 2 in 1964 and Region 3 in 1968. The regional organizations were formally recognised by a constitutional revision in 1975.

Each of the regional organizations holds a plenipotentiary conference every three years, on a rotating basis. The policy and management of the IARU are the responsibility of its Administrative Council, composed of the three IARU officers the President, Vice-President and Secretary together with two representatives from each of the three regions. The Administrative Council meets yearly.

Most importantly, the IARU is the recognised spokesman for the amateur and amateur satellite services at the International Telecommunications Union and at the regional telecommunications organisations; CEPT, PATU, CITEL and APT.

Repeater & Beacon Application Process

Overview

By agreement with ACMA and the WIA, and for orderly processing, all licence applications for amateur repeaters and beacon must be coordinated through the WIA (the National Office); this includes new services as well as amendments or variations to existing licences.

The point of contact for all amateur repeater and beacon applications is the National Office of the WIA at the address listed below. In association with the WIA Repeater and Beacon Coordinator (RABC) all applications will be acknowledged and issued with a tracking reference number, that applicants can cite when dealing with the office. This is an important aspect when determining at what stage an application is in the process. Applications sent directly to the RABC will not be considered an application and therefore will not proceed any further.

Upon receipt all applications are sent to the RABC who will assess the technical aspects of the application, selecting or confirming a frequency(s) and where necessary checking for consistency with the WIA Band Plans, and conduct the necessary EMC compatibility checks. The RABC will refer applications to the various state Technical Advisory Committee Member(s) for comment, or seek further information as necessary.

The nominated club representative may contact the RABC prior to and during the applications process to clarify technical aspects of an application.

Application steps

1. Clubs/organisations should select a person to be the nominated representative for coordinating the application with the WIA.
2. To assist the process, ACMA application form R057 Application for Licence(s) and form R077 Additional Station Information should be used. All relevant sections should be completed, but if this is not possible leave the section blank and the RABC will complete if necessary. Both these forms are available from the ACMA website.
3. To assist in understanding what is required, eg, whether the application(s) is a new one, or a variation to an existing licence, an accompanying description of what the equipment is going to be used for and where it is going to be located (citing ACMA client and licence numbers if relevant) is required. Also, in the case of repeater links, which other repeater or site(s) are going to be linked. A sketch map is useful. The description should also include the name of the nominated licensee and the contact details of the person submitting the application.
4. The completed applications should be sent to:
   Wireless Institute of Australia
   PO Box 2042 Bayswater VIC 3153
5. Upon receipt all applications will be issued with a reference number for tracking purposes, and an acknowledgment letter will be sent to the nominated club/organisation representative.
6. All papers associated with the application(s) will be forwarded within one working day of receipt to the RABC, who will, after consultation with the applicant and/or the State TAC representative, complete the ACMA forms and lodge the application with the ACMA.

Process completion

Depending on the complexity or workload of ACMA staff, applications lodged with ACMA will take 14 working days to complete.

For licences for which the WIA is responsible, the WIA has an account with the ACMA and when an application has been completed, the WIA will be advised of the fees applicable for the application. The WIA will remit the monies requested and ACMA will then issue the licence(s) accordingly. It is at this point the licence will appear on the ACMA Register of Licences. Upon receipt of the printed licences from ACMA, the WIA office will forward these to the respective club/organisation.

For non WIA licences, the club or organisation will need to append a cheque to the application for the ACMA licence fees or charges. Once the licence has been issued, the licence details will appear on the ACMA Register of Licences and a paper copy will be sent to the licensee's postal address.

Voice Repeater Guidelines

Repeaters are established primarily to extend the communication range of mobile stations in the VHF and UHF bands, and to assist amateurs in remote locations where simplex communication is not normally possible. They can also be used as calling channels for initial contact before switching to a simplex frequency. The following are suggested guidelines to maximise the efficient and courteous use of repeaters.

Transmission time:

Keep contacts brief and to the point. Each transmission should not exceed two minutes. If you have nothing to say, don't say it! Repeaters have timers to limit transmission length. Do not reset the repeater's timer to extend your own transmission time. Before replying, let the repeater 'drop out' and wait at least three seconds before transmitting. This allows others immediate access.

Breaking in:

If you are using a repeater and another station announces its callsign during the pause, let that station go ahead immediately. He or she may have an urgent message.

To gain access to a repeater which is being used by others, announce your callsign during the pause between overs. If you have an urgent message, it is better to say so when you announce your callsign.

Calling CQ:

In some parts of Australia, it is not usual practice to call CQ on a repeater. The most common practice is to just announce your callsign. It is courteous to follow local repeater practice.

Use of Callsigns:

Avoid over–use of callsigns. They are required at the start and end of a contact, and at least once every ten minutes. But they can be dropped from the start and end of transmission during a contact. Avoid using phonetics unless they are absolutely necessary.

Reverse operation:

Use reverse facilities to observe the other station's strength, and, if satisfactory, move to a simplex channel. This keeps the repeater clear for those who may need it. Please avoid simplex operation on repeater inputs, even if the channel is not in use in the immediate area, you may key up a repeater without realising it.

It is also better to avoid using a repeater output for a simplex contact: other stations may be able to hear a repeater on the frequency even if you can't.

Poor conditions:

If your signal into the repeater is reported to be marginal copy or breaking up, do not persist in using the repeater until you are able to improve your signal.

Deliberate interference:

Ignore annoying transmissions. Do not respond to a transmission not identified by callsign, or even comment on it. If you do, it will only encourage the person causing the interference.

Crossband contacts:

The use of repeaters for liaison to establish contact on another band is reasonable, but cross-band contacts using a repeater are not encouraged. Where cross-band contacts are made, all frequencies should be announced by all parties. Priority should be given to normal repeater usage.

Courtesy:

Be courteous and unselfish at all times, and always be aware of the needs of other people who have an equal right to share the repeater. If you hear someone new to repeater operation, assist and educate them in a courteous manner. Remember that others, including new or potential radio amateurs, monitor repeaters. The image of amateur radio is important.

Amateur Radio and Electromagnetic Radiation Issues

What is EMR?

Electromagnetic radiation is familiar to us all as sunlight, heat, X-rays and radio waves. Electromagnetic radiation (EMR) conveys energy from a source to distant places. For example, the Sun radiates light, heat and other varieties of electromagnetic energy, which is received here on Earth. Your amateur transmitter conveys radiofrequency (RF) energy via your antenna to other amateurs' antennas and their receivers detect that energy and convert it to sound.

Whenever you go on the air, your station antenna generates an electromagnetic field that radiates in all directions, with the antenna often designed or arranged to radiate more energy in particular directions and less in others.

Because there is some public concern about possible health effects on humans of radiofrequency (RF) electromagnetic energy (EME) emissions, generally focused on mobile phones and their base stations, the Australian Government's Australian Radiation Protection and Nuclear Safety Agency available via this Link – ARPANSA – has developed standards for protecting the health and safety of people, and the environment, from the harmful effects of ionizing radiation (e.g. X-rays) and non-ionising radiation (e.g. RF electromagnetic energy emissions).

Understanding Electromagnetic Radiation Compliance for Amateur Radio Stations

Since 2003, the ACMA has required all transmitting stations to assess the status of the risk that a station presents in relation to human exposure to radiofrequency electromagnetic fields, generally termed electromagnetic radiation (EMR) or electromagnetic emissions (EME).

The Radiocommunications Licence Conditions (Apparatus Licence) Determination 2003 – the Apparatus LCD – was scheduled to expire ("sunset") on 1 April 2015. Following a consultation program over 2014, the ACMA "re-made" this LCD, which was published in February 2015. It is recommended that you download a copy of the Radiocommunications Licence Conditions (Apparatus Licence) Determination 2015 from the Australian Government's ComLaw website at https://www.comlaw.gov.au/Details/F2015L00210.

The ACMA's EMR Compliance regime attempts to ensure that RF exposure levels within a station, and any publicly accessible areas around the station, do not exceed the general public exposure limits specified by the Australian Radiation Protection and Nuclear Safety Agency (ARPANSA) Standard.

In order to simplify the evaluation and reporting requirements for most transmitting stations, including Amateur stations, the ACMA has adopted a system of two compliance levels. All licensees are required to determine the compliance level of their station.

The ACMA publication "Human Exposure to Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Radiation – Information for licensees of radiocommunications transmitters, October 2005" provides guidance for determining the compliance levels. You can download this publication from http://www.acma.gov.au/webwr/consumer_info/issues_alerts/emrbook_licensees.pdf.

The two compliance levels are summarised below.

Compliance Level 1

Compliance Level 1 applies if:

- the transmitter is a mobile transmitter with an average total power output, fed to all antennas, of not more than 100 watts (W); or
- the average total power supplied by the fixed station transmitter to all antennas fed by the transmitter is not more than 100 W, and each antenna fed by the transmitter is installed so that it is inaccessible to a member of the general public; or
- the average total equivalent isotropically radiated power (EIRP) of all antennas fed by the fixed station transmitter does not exceed 3200 W in any direction and the minimum height of the lowest antenna fed by the transmitter is at least 10 metres above ground level.

So, an amateur home station operating a 400 W PEP SSB transmitter with low (or no) voice compression will have an average power of less than 100 W and therefore can be assumed to be Compliance Level 1, providing the antennae is inaccessible to the public.

If your transmitter installation is in the Compliance Level 1 category, then you do not need to do anything more and you do not need to keep records.

However, as an example, if your station has an average power of 110 W and the lowest element of an antenna fed by the transmitter is eight meters (8 m) above the ground, the station would not meet the requirements for Compliance Level 1 and would thus be Compliance Level 2.

Even if you have assessed your station as Compliance Level 1, you may be asked to provide a technical rationale. In other words, you may need to convince an ACMA representative that you have correctly assessed your station.

Compliance Level 2

All stations not meeting the Level 1 criteria are classified as Compliance Level 2, even though the actual calculated or measured exposure levels may be low.

If your transmitter installation is in the Compliance Level 2 category, then, as the licensee, it is your responsibility to assess your station against the exposure limits of the ARPANSA standard, and to also hold records showing compliance with the exposure limits.

For an Amateur station, compliance can be by self-assessment, taking into account the knowledge and qualifications of the amateur licensee. The VK3UM EMR calculator on the WIA website (files at http://www.wia.org.au/members/technical/emr/) can be used for determining exposure levels, your station compliance and the compliance level; the calculator also allows you to print hard copies of the results as evidence of your compliance.

You need to be very aware of your legal obligation regarding EMR assessment, especially if you are operating high power, or high antenna gain, or on UHF frequencies and above. The hard copy evidence of a Compliance Level 2 assessment, as well as a Declaration of Conformity, must be kept in your station file, along with your Amateur licence, and be available for inspection by the ACMA.

In particular, if you are using an antenna where the radiating elements (or parts of the elements) are close to the ground - such as a sloper, an inverted-V, a doublet or G5RV with open-wire line hanging down, or any type of ground mounted vertical antenna - you need to ensure that all parts of the antenna are inaccessible to the public.

Terms commonly used to describe the power of a transmitter in the Amateur LCD and other information.

Px - the average power delivered by a transmitter during one radio frequency cycle at the crest of the modulation envelope taken under normal operating conditions. This is commonly referred to in amateur circles as peak envelope power (PEP).

Py - the average power delivered by a transmitter over a time period sufficiently long compared with the lowest frequency encountered in the modulation taken under normal operating conditions.

Pz - the average power delivered by a transmitter during one radio frequency cycle under the condition of no modulation, more commonly referred to in amateur circles as Carrier Power.

WIA Examination Service

There are three levels of amateur licence in Australia, the Foundation, the Standard and the Advanced.

To obtain a licence at any level, the applicant must hold the appropriate Certificate of Proficiency or hold equivalent qualifications. To obtain a Certificate of Proficiency, competency must be demonstrated by passing examinations in Radio theory, the relevant Regulations and some practical aspects of operating an amateur station.

Foundation licence

Most amateurs start out at the Foundation level and work their way up to the Advanced, although those with some academic qualifications may start at a higher level.

Foundation level training is carried out by Clubs, and comprises a weekend (or equivalent time) of learning and understanding of the required Theory and Regulations, culminating in a 25 question multiple choice exam and a practical test on operating procedures, safety and equipment recognition and operation.

Assessment testing materials are supplied by the WIA Exam Service, who record the results and issue results certificates and the Certificate of Proficiency. Assessment is carried out at the club level by Assessors accredited by the WIA.

Most Clubs appoint a 'Learning Facilitator' as the first point of contact for persons seeking Assessment (see WIA Website or Club list in this book).

Higher level licences

When upgrading to the Amateur Operator's Certificate of Proficiency at Standard or Advanced level, a greater knowledge of Radio theory is expected. The exam comprises a 50 question theory paper and a 30 question regulations paper, as well as the practical test if that has not already been awarded a 'Competent'.

Again, assessment materials are supplied by WIA Exam Service and the results processed as above.

What to expect

The WIA endeavours to process the paperwork within five working days after their receipt from the Assessors. It may then take up to four weeks for the paperwork to be processed by ACMA.

Syllabi

Syllabi for all levels of Assessment can be found under the "Your Amateur Radio Licence" tab on the WIA website (www.wia.org.au).

Summits on the Air (SOTA)

Summits on the Air (SOTA) is an award scheme for radio amateurs and shortwave listeners that encourages portable operation in mountainous areas. Participation is for everyone. There are awards for activators; those who ascend to the summits and chasers who either operate from home, a local hilltop or are even Activators on other summits.

SOTA is operational in many countries across the world. Each country has its own Association which defines the recognised SOTA summits within that Association.

Each summit earns the activators and chasers a score which is related to the height of the summit. Certificates are available for various scores, leading to the prestigious "Mountain Goat" and "Shack Sloth" trophies. An Honour Roll for Activators and Chasers is maintained at the SOTA online database.

Visiting Amateurs Guidelines

Amateurs Visiting Australia

Overseas amateurs visiting Australia may now operate for up to the first 90 days of their visit, without applying for a licence or making any payment.

They may do so under a class licence, issued by the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA), the Overseas Amateurs Class Licence. Visiting amateurs wishing to operate for longer periods must apply for an apparatus licence, and pay the required licence fees.

This note addresses only the class licence.

The class licence, which sets out all the conditions applicable to the operation of a station by an overseas amateur visiting Australia, may be found on the WIA's website, www.wia.org.au.

The class licence sets out five levels of operating privilege, ranging from the privileges equivalent to the Australian Advanced licensee through to a privilege restricting operation to the band 146 to 148 MHz and employing only low power FM voice.

The operating privileges for a visiting amateur depend on the qualification or licence held by the visiting amateur. The overseas licence and the conditions that the holder must operate under in Australia are listed in the ACMA's table of equivalent qualifications and licenses.

The table of equivalent qualifications and licenses may be found on the ACMA website, http://www.acma.gov.au/WEB/STANDARD/pc=PC_1311.

Importantly, if a licence or qualification is not listed, then at least the visiting amateur can use the low power, FM voice privileges – which really means access to the Australian two metre repeaters.

So every amateur from every country may at least operate in Australia.

The visiting amateur may be asked to produce evidence that he or she entered Australia less than 90 days before operating the station, and holds an appropriate overseas amateur licence or qualification.

When operating in Australia the overseas amateur station must identify using the letters VK, followed by his or her own home callsign, followed by the word "portable" and the location of the station.

Australian Amateurs Visiting CEPT Countries

Australia is now a party to the CEPT (European Conference of Postal and Telecommunications Administrations) recommendation T/R 61-01 which permits the holder of an Australian Advanced class radio amateur licence to operate in over 30 countries without having to first obtain a local licence. This arrangement covers both CEPT countries and even non-CEPT countries like W, ZL, ZS and VE.

This arrangement is intended for short visits, typically one to three months.

Before you go, you should:

- Check that your Australian licence shows that it qualifies as a CEPT licence. Licences renewed since Australia joined the CEPT arrangements show this. (Advanced Station licences issued from 4 June 2008 include an Advisory Note in English, French and German that indicates that the licence accords with the CEPT Recommendation T/R 61-01. Amateurs holding licences without that Advisory Note may apply for a replacement licence.)
- Check what national licence class in the country you want to visit is equivalent to your licence.
- Check what are the operating privileges and regulations covering the use of that national licence class in the country to be visited.
- Use the appropriate prefix which has to precede your own personal Australian callsign.

The key point is that the operating privileges for the visitor operating under the CEPT Licences are defined by the country being visited, not your operating privileges in Australia.

Some of the 48 members of CEPT have NOT implemented the CEPT licences. Just because the country is listed as a CEPT country does not mean it has adopted the CEPT licences. Additionally any country can add extra conditions to the CEPT licences. These conditions will be shown as footnotes to the equivalence table e.g. in T/R 61-01 Appendix II. For example, Estonia requires that a visitor use a local regional prefix.

Have a look at the tables in either of the CEPT documents (URLs below) and you can see that the equivalent local licence class is listed for each of the countries which have adopted the CEPT licences. So as an example, having found out that your Australian licence is included in the table in T/R 61-01, Appendix IV and you want to travel to Germany, you turn to the table in Appendix II and look up the entry for Germany which says that German licences 1,2, and A apply. Then you go to the DARC website and look up the operating privileges which apply. Likewise if you plan on coming to the UK then the licence class which applies is the UK Full licence and operating details are available from RSGB and Ofcom websites.

The administration of CEPT takes place at the European Radiocommunications Office (ERO) in Denmark and so to check these things go to the ERO website.

The main ERO page is www.ero.dk

The access the T/R 61-01 CEPT document, enter 'T/R 61-01' in the search facility at www.erodocdb.dk

Scroll down the page to the relevant documents or quicker just use your browser to 'search in the page' for '61-01'. You can then download the text of these agreements or just look on line. If you click on the 'Implementation' button a new page opens which shows which countries have adopted the agreements and any special conditions if any.

You should identify your station using the national prefix and any secondary locator if any, then a forward slash,'/', followed by your home VK callsign.

Appendix II of T/R 61-01 tells you the prefix which you should append to your personal Australian call (VK'x''aaa') when you are in Germany, so your callsign becomes DL/VK'x''aaa' or in the UK M/VK'x''aaa'.

Finally, when travelling you should carry your VK licence with you showing that it is recognised by CEPT.

Get out of the radio shack and activate a National, State, Conservation or Marine Park

This program is a great way to get to know some of Australia's beautiful parks.

The World Wide Flora and Fauna (WWFF) program is an international program that promotes portable operation from designated nature reserves and parks in 41 countries all over the World.

The program promotes the importance of protecting nature, flora and fauna.

In Australia we have over 600 parks across all state and territories and working these as a chaser or activator will earn you awards.

The Australian coordinator for the program is Paul VK5PAS.

Many of the parks in South Australia are also eligible for the WWFF award as well as the VK5 National & Conservation Parks Award

For more information http://www.wwffaustralia.com/index.html

In VK3 there is also the Keith Roget Memorial National Parks Award
The aim is to encourage and recognise portable operation in Victoria's 45 National Parks, and the logging of contacts with those in the parks.

A driving force behind this award which dates back to the 1970s is the late Keith Roget VK3YQ (sk), himself a portable operator, and notable figure in WIA Victoria and the federal arena.

About AMSAT-VK

AMSAT-VK is a group of Australian amateur radio operators who share a common interest in building, launching and communicating with each other through non-commercial amateur radio satellites. Many of our members also have an interest in other space based communications, including listening to and communicating with the International Space Station, Earth-Moon-Earth (EME), monitoring weather (WX) satellites and other spacecraft.

AMSAT-VK is the primary point of contact for those interested in becoming involved in amateur radio satellite operations. If you are interested in learning more about satellite operations or just wish to become a member of AMSAT-Australia, please see our website.

AMSAT-VK monthly net
Australian National Satellite net

The net takes place on the 2nd Tuesday of each month at 8.30 pm eastern time, that is 0930 Z or 1030 Z depending on daylight saving. Check-in starts 10 minutes prior to the start time. The AMSAT-VK net has been running for many years with the aim of allowing amateur radio operators who are operating or have an interest in working in the satellite mode, to make contact with others in order to share their experiences and to catch up on pertinent news. The format also facilitates other aspects like making 'skeds' and for a general 'off-bird' chat. In addition to the EchoLink conference, the net will also be available via RF on the following repeaters and links.

In New South Wales
VK2RBM Blue Mountains repeater on 147.050 MHz

In Queensland
VK4RIL Laidley repeater on 147.700 MHz
VK4RRC Redcliffe 146.925 MHz IRLP node 6404, EchoLink node 44666

In South Australia
VK5TRM, Loxton on 147.175 MHz
VK5RSC, Mt Terrible on 439.825 MHz IRLP node 6278, EchoLink node 399996

In Tasmania
VK7RTV Gawler 6 metre repeater 53.775 MHz IRLP node 6124
VK7RTV Gawler 2 metre repeater 146.775 MHz IRLP node 6616

In the Northern Territory
VK8MA Katherine 146.700 MHz FM

Operators may join the net via the above repeaters or by connecting to EchoLink on either the AMSAT or VK3JED conferences. Past experience has shown that the VK3JED server offers clearer audio. The net is also available via IRLP reflector number 9558. We are keen to have the net carried by other EchoLink or IRLP enabled repeaters and links in order to improve coverage. If you are interested in carrying our net on your system, please contact Paul via email. Frequencies and nodes can change without much notice. Details are put on the AMSAT-VK group site.

Become involved

Amateur satellite operating is one of the most interesting and rewarding modes in our hobby. The birds are relatively easy to access and require very little hardware investment to get started. You can gain access to the FM 'repeaters in the sky' with just a dual band handheld operating on 2 m and 70 cm. These easy-to-use and popular FM satellites will give hams national communications and handheld access into New Zealand at various times through the day and night. Currently only SO-50 is available.

Should you wish to join AMSAT-VK, details are available on the web site or sign-up at our group site as above. Membership is free and you will be made very welcome.

3. Contacts for the awards must all be made from within the boundaries of a single DXCC entity, excepting VHF awards, which have different boundaries
4. All QSOs must have been made since 1 January 1946, unless stated otherwise.
5. Applicants are required to prove confirmation for all QSOs claimed. Paper, eQSL and Logbook of the World (LOTW) are our current acceptable confirmation standards.
   a. DXCC entity numbers must be verified by yourself before award submission using the "Verify DXCC" function.
   b. LOTW confirmations must be verified by yourself before award submission using the "Verify LOTW" function.
   c. eQSL confirmations must be verified by yourself before award submission using the "Verify eQSL" function. Only confirmations from "Authenticity Guaranteed" members of eQSL will be accepted.

6. A valid QSO, for HF award purposes:
   a. must be made from and to, land-based, or permanently moored vessels [proof required], using direct terrestrial propagation via the same mode and band without assistance of the internet or anyone for each claimed contact.
   b. QSOs made on 'nets' are acceptable as long as the basic QSO information [callsign & signal report] is exchanged and confirmed unassisted.
   c. Contacts made via any other means are not acceptable, such as cross-band, via a repeater, airborne, IRLP, or any other means that is deemed to be unacceptable by the Awards Committee.
7. Prearranged contacts [skeds] or via 'nets' are acceptable as long as the other criteria are met.
8. All information supplied in an application for an award must be accurate and truthful.
9. QSOs may be made using multiple callsigns providing each call used was issued to the applicant at the time of the claimed QSO(s) and all contacts were made from the same DXCC entity. Scanned copy of multiple licenses may be requested to prove the license(s) was/were issued to you at the time of the claimed QSO(s).
10. All QSOs claimed must be on bands/sub-bands/modes/power-levels permitted by the licensing authority for that class of license at the time of the contact.
11. All individual contacts must have been made using the same mode and band in both directions.
12. Awards are available in the following modes: OPEN, CW, PHONE and DIGITAL.

The rejected application can be resubmitted once the reasons for rejection have been corrected. An application rejected three (3) times will not be further considered

WIA Contests

Contests can be an exciting part of Amateur Radio activity. They can sharpen your operating skills while giving you the satisfaction of competing and knowing how your station performs. WIA provides several challenging Contests each year (see Table below). Rules are published in the WIA's monthly journal, Amateur Radio, one or two months prior to the Contest. They are also on the WIA web page. Results are published as soon as they are received.

As well as Australian contests, details of many overseas contests are published in the monthly Contests column in Amateur Radio magazine.

The Contests page on the WIA web site is: http://www.wia.org.au/members/contests/about/

Please contact the WIA Contests Coordinator for any further help. You can email him at contests@wia.org.au

To Claim a Record

To make a record claim, please refer to the file VHF Record Claims, which contains the terms and conditions and a claim form. This material can be downloaded from the WIA web site.

Details required are date, time, frequency, mode, signal reports, and some details of equipment used. Station locations must be given in degrees, minutes and seconds. Six digit locators are acceptable only for distances over 5000 km.

If claims are signed by both operators, copies of QSL cards are not required. Otherwise claims must be accompanied by original QSL cards or certified copies. If original cards are sent, they will be returned. Other material will be retained.

The decision of the WIA on all claims will be accepted as final.

Record claims should be posted to: The Chairman, WIA Technical Advisory Committee, PO Box 2042, Bayswater, Vic 3153. Email enquiries can be sent to tac@wia.org.au.

A list of all past Australian VHF-UHF records can also be downloaded from the WIA web site.

Great Circle Maps Notes to accompany the maps on the WIA Callbook CD

These maps were generated using AZ_PROJ mapping software and have been reproduced by permission of the authors, Joseph Mack NA3T and Michael Katzmann NV3Z. The source code of the AZ_PROJ software is freely available and may be downloaded from the AZ_PROJ web site: http://www.wm7d.net/azproj.shtml Anyone may also generate their own maps online at the same web site.

The CD contains two sets of maps, one for HF and the other for VHF. They are all in the form of 72 dpi GIF images, which provide a reasonable compromise between resolution and file size. They are intended for printing on A4 paper.

See below for a full list of the maps, including the co-ordinates and Maidenhead locators of their centre points.

World Great Circle Maps – 2500 km per cm (35 maps)

These maps display the whole world with a radius of 2500 km per cm and should be printed in portrait mode. To avoid cluttering the maps, details such as placenames and geographical features have been omitted.

The maps use a limited range of colours:

- Black for national boundaries and brown for state boundaries (some countries only);
- Green and blue for major rivers and lakes;
- Yellow for compass bearings (at 15 degree intervals);
- Red for the equator and latitudes 30 and 60 degrees from the poles, and for the Greenwich meridian.

There are 35 world maps in all. If your location is not amongst them, use the nearest one - the error in beam headings will be quite small. If you wish to obtain a map customised for your precise location, see below.

VHF Maps – 250 km per cm (72 maps)

These maps have a radius of 250 km per cm and extend 2500 km from the centre point. They contain similar information to the world maps, but with the addition of Maidenhead locator fields. To make best use of an A4 size sheet, these maps have been rotated 90 degrees, so they will come out sideways when printed in portrait mode. (Do not print them in landscape mode, or a portion of each side of the map will be lost.)

Because of the narrow beamwidth of VHF antennas, maps are provided for 72 different locations. If your location is not too far from the nearest one, the beam heading error should be quite small. However for microwave work you may wish to download a map with a smaller radius and customised for your precise location.

Maidenhead Locators – Key Maps

Also included with the VHF maps are two Maidenhead Locator maps:

- "Locator Fields Aust - NZ" shows the locator fields for Australia, New Zealand and nearby areas.
- "Maidenhead Locators" explains the Maidenhead locator system.

Downloading Your Own Maps

The AZ_PROJ web site also allows users to generate and download their own maps online. The site offers two options, the Short Form and the Long Form. The Short Form allows the user to customise the centre position, the continents to be included in the map, the output format, and the scale. The available scales range from 50 km per cm (map radius 500 km) up to 10,000 km per cm (whole world fits in 4 cm).

The Long Form allows generation of maps with additional details including place names, locators, geographical features, grey line, DXCC and IOTA, and even the details of beacons, repeaters and broadcast stations for some countries.

When downloading files from AZ_PROJ, the most suitable formats will usually be GIF or PNG. Other formats like PDF are also available, but they require an extremely large print buffer and may be unprintable unless your computer has a very large amount of RAM.

Maidenhead Locators

LOCATOR FIELDS: The world is divided into 18 x 18 locator fields, each covering an area 20 degrees east – west and 10 degrees north – south. The naming of these fields begins with AA at 180 degrees west and 90 degrees south, and ends with RR at 180 degrees east and 90 degrees north.

The example shown here is the field QF, which covers 140 - 160 degrees east and 30 - 40 degrees south. The centre of this field is at 150 degrees east and 35 degrees south, and the grey circles show radial distances at 100 km intervals from this point.

LOCATOR SQUARES: Each locator field is divided into 100 squares (actually rectangles), which each cover 1 degree N – S and 2 degrees E – W. The numbering of these squares starts at the SW corner of the field. In this example, Sydney is 5 squares to the east and 6 to the north from the starting point of the QF field, so its 4 digit locator is QF56.

SIX DIGIT LOCATORS: For accuracy down to only a few km, locator squares can be further subdivided into 24 x 24 sub-squares by adding two extra digits from aa to xx. For example, the 6 digit locator for Sydney is QF56oc.

The IBP HF Beacon Network

WORLDWIDE 10 METRE BEACONS: An up-to-date list of worldwide 10 metre beacons can be found at the "Andre's Beacons" web site – http://www.mydarc.de/dl8wx/baken_kw.htm

IARU and the Northern California DX Foundation (NCDXF) sponsor a series of beacons which operate on the 20, 17, 15, 12 and 10 metre bands. All beacons are GPS controlled and transmit for ten seconds every three minutes. The transmissions consist of the callsign (at 22 wpm), followed by four one-second dashes. The callsign is sent at 100 watts, and the four dashes are sent at 100, 10, 1 and 0.1 watts. These 10 dB power steps are precise and are useful for S meter calibration and judging band conditions. For more information and updates on the status of each beacon, contact the Northern California DX Foundation, P.O. Box 2368, Stanford, CA 94309-2368, USA, or on the Internet go to www.ncdxf.org/beacons.html.

Introduction

Spectrum Management

International spectrum management is the responsibility of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU). The ITU Radio Regulations allocate separate bands for each service such as fixed, mobile, broadcasting or amateur. Some bands are shared by more than one service.

When bands are shared, services designated "Primary" are entitled to full protection from interference caused by secondary services. Secondary services must tolerate interference from primary services operating in the same band, and not cause any interference to primary services. Other services may also be permitted to share bands with primary and secondary services on a non-interference basis.

Each ITU member nation implements the Radio Regulations within its borders. Most member nations follow the ITU allocation tables fairly closely, although they do have the right to make variations to suit local requirements. In Australia, spectrum management is the responsibility of the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA). It determines frequency allocations and licence conditions for all transmitting stations in Australia and its territories.

Amateur Self-Regulation

Amateurs use a wide variety of different modes. Within one amateur band, activity can include CW, voice, satellite and EME activity, and ATV. The best way of avoiding clashes is to set aside different band segments for each of these activities, so that all amateurs can pursue their interests without interference.

Amateur band plans are voluntary agreements, often known as "Gentlemen's Agreements". They are sponsored by the WIA, but they are for the benefit of all amateurs. Most amateurs - WIA members or not - abide by the band plans because it makes sense to give everyone a fair go. Clashes still occur at times, and the usual reason is lack of awareness of the band plans. Most amateurs are willing to change frequency if the problem is explained to them politely.

Band Planning Guidelines

Band plans need to satisfy a number of conflicting criteria:

- They should take local conditions into account, but they should be consistent with international usage.
- They should encourage spectrum efficiency, but they should also ensure that all modes have their fair share of spectrum space.
- They should take the popularity of each mode into account, while still providing enough spectrum space for less popular activities. For example, ATV requires far more bandwidth per operator than other modes; and activities such as EME are of major importance regardless of the number of stations involved.
- Band plans must be flexible enough to adapt to changing needs, but they tend to lose support if they are changed too often. The aim must be to think ahead and to make sure that future options are not closed off.

Mode Compatibility

Some modes require exclusive band segments, but others can coexist with similar modes in the same part of the band. On the HF bands, there are three main mode divisions: CW, digital data modes, and SSB. Image modes such as SSTV are usually sent as SSB signals, so these modes can be used in the SSB band segments. The same applies to digital voice modes that occupy much the same bandwidth as an SSB signal.

AM receives little use nowadays because it is less efficient than SSB and occupies twice as much bandwidth. But it can still be found, mainly on 160 metres and sometimes around 29 MHz.

On 10 metres, there is also a fourth category for FM. This mode is quite popular above 29 MHz, but it should not be used on lower frequencies because of its wide bandwidth. It should also be noted that most HF radios cannot comply with ACMA's bandwidth limit of 8 kHz for FM operation on bands below 10 metres.

On the VHF-UHF bands, the grouping of modes is slightly different. The three main groups are:

- CW and SSB: the preferred modes for weak signal work, including digital DX modes using SSB bandwidths.
- FM: not suitable for weak signal work and not compatible with SSB or CW. This category also includes modes such as packet, which usually use FM mode on the VHF bands.
- ATV: requires a very large bandwidth but has a very low power density, so it needs an exclusive interference-free band segment.

Calling Frequencies

On the VHF bands, the band plans include calling frequencies. These frequencies are "meeting places" and should be used only to make initial contact before moving to another frequency. If you "hog" the calling frequency you will prevent others from making calls or hearing more distant stations that may appear on the frequency.

Beacons

Beacons give an indication of band conditions and provide a warning of DX openings. They also serve as test signals for receiver calibration and testing. There should be no other transmissions within the beacon segments or on their band edges. This applies even if you are hundreds of kilometres away from the nearest beacon!

On the VHF/UHF bands, beacon frequencies are allocated according to a geographic allocation plan with a frequency spacing of 2 kHz. Further details on beacon frequency allocations are available from the Technical Advisory Committee.

Satellite Segments

The band plans provide separate band segments for satellite operation. Satellite downlink bands should be kept clear of other transmissions at all times – right to the band edges. On bands where the satellite band joins an FM segment, there should be no FM operation on the band edge.

FM Segments

FM operators can operate on any simplex channel or on unused repeater frequencies. The band plan SSB and beacon segments should be avoided at all times. It is also a good idea to avoid operating simplex on repeater input channels – you may unintentionally key up a distant repeater.

Newer digital voice modes such as D-STAR commonly share the band plan FM segments.

Further Information

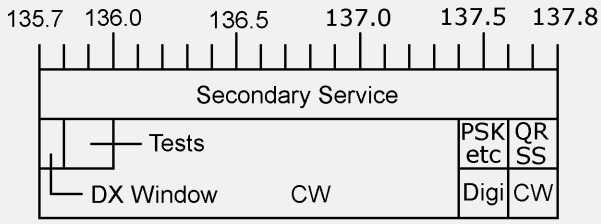
The band plans are reviewed regularly, to keep up to date with changing patterns of activity. The band plans apply in all states, so any changes must be discussed and agreed in all states before they are adopted. If a proposed new application requires a change to the band plan, or if you are aware of any band planning problems in your area, please advise the Technical Advisory Committee.

Further information about technical standards, frequency allocation and licensing of unattended stations (including beacons, repeaters, links, gateways etc…) is available on request from the Technical Advisory Committee.

LF and MF Bands

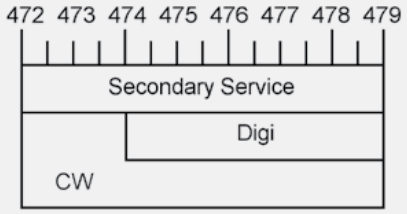
2200 metre band – Advanced Licensees Only

The following plan is recommended as an interim plan for the 2200 metre band. This plan is based on the unofficial 2200 metre band plan adopted by LF operators in ITU Region I.



135.7 - 137.4 kHz	CW only
135.7 - 135.8 kHz	International DX window
135.8 - 136.0 kHz	Test transmissions and test beacons
136.0 - 137.4 kHz	Normal CW operation (centre of activity 136.5 kHz)
137.4 - 137.6 kHz	Narrow band digital modes, e.g. PSK (centre of activity 137.5 kHz)
137.6 - 137.8 kHz	Slow CW modes, e.g. QRSS

630 metre band – Advanced Licensees Only



ACMA licence conditions for this band permit the use of any mode with a maximum bandwidth of 2.1 kHz.

The following frequencies are based on current CW and digital activity in IARU Region I, and are recommended for DX activity.

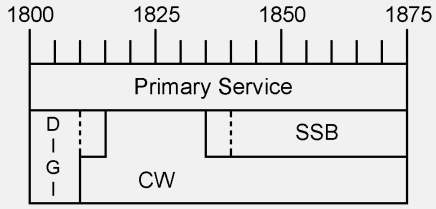
CW	472.500 kHz - recommended centre frequency for international DX
WSPR	474.2 kHz USB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 475.6 - 475.8 kHz)
ROS	476.0 kHz USB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 477.4 - 477.6 kHz)
QRSS	476.175 kHz USB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 477.175 - 477.185 kHz). (Some activity also on 478.9 kHz)
WSJTX	477.0 kHz USB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 478.0 - 478.5 kHz)
Opera	477.0 kHz USB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 478.5 - 478.8 kHz)

SSB operation is also permitted, with a maximum occupied bandwidth of 2.1 kHz. However, it is not possible to run SSB without overlapping frequencies that are used for CW or digital modes. Users of this band will need to exercise tolerance and restraint. One suggested approach is that SSB operators voluntarily restrict their activities to daylight hours.

The two SSB frequencies listed below are possible options that have been suggested. The frequencies given assume the use of LSB mode and an audio bandwidth of 300 - 2400 Hz.

SSB	479.3 kHz LSB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 476.9 - 479.0 kHz). 476.0 kHz LSB dial frequency (occupied bandwidth 473.6 - 475.7 kHz).

160 metre band – Advanced Licensees Only



1800 - 1810	Digital data modes	(Notes 1, 2)
1810 - 1840	CW only	(Note 1)
1840 - 1875	SSB / AM	(Note 1)

Notes – DX operation has absolute priority between 1810 and 1840 kHz. Digital mode operation may occur up to 1815 kHz, but only for contacts with overseas stations that cannot operate below 1810 kHz. SSB operation may occur down to 1835 kHz, but only for contacts with overseas stations that cannot operate above 1840 kHz. Operation may vary from the band plan during times when all stations within working range are in full daylight.

The internationally accepted frequency for WSPR mode is 1.8366 kHz (frequency indicated on the dial using USB mode). This corresponds to an actual occupied bandwidth of 1838.0 - 1838.2 kHz.

Notes for the 80 - 10 metre bands

Note 1: Modes
"Digital Data Modes" includes all modes such as RTTY, packet and Amtor, using FSK or PSK and with bandwidths up to 2 kHz.

The following frequencies are used internationally for operation using WSPR mode: 1.8366, 3.5926, 7.0386, 10.1387, 14.0956, 18.1046, 21.0946, 24.9246, 28.1246 MHz

These frequencies are the indicated dial frequency using USB mode. The frequencies actually occupied by the WSPR signals are from 1.4 to 1.6 kHz higher than the dial frequency.

The SSB segment can also be used for digital voice modes and image transmission modes such as SSTV or Fax, using bandwidths up to 4 kHz, or for AM. On 10 metres, the recommended segment for AM is 29.0 - 29.1 MHz

Note 2: Beacons
The beacon segments should be kept clear of all other transmissions.

Note 3: Amateur Satellites
Amateur satellites may operate in the bands 7.0 - 7.1, 14.0 - 14.250, 18.068 - 18.168, 21.0 - 21.45, 24.89 - 24.99 and 28.0 - 29.7 MHz. Current satellites operate between 21.160 - 21.300 and 29.300 - 29.500 MHz. The 10 metre satellite segment should be kept clear of all other transmissions.

Note 4: FM Simplex
Maximum permitted bandwidth for FM is 16 kHz on 10 metres, and 6 kHz on lower bands. Most multimode transceivers cannot comply with the 6 kHz bandwidth limit and should not be used in FM mode below 10 metres. Please avoid operation on 29.300 or 29.500 MHz, as this can interfere with satellite downlinks.

Note 1: Narrow Band Modes
This segment is reserved for modes such as CW, digital modes and SSB with bandwidths up to 4 kHz. Weak signal operation has absolute priority. International practice is to keep the segment below 50.150 MHz clear at all times for international DX operation, and to use 50.150 MHz and above for contacts within the country or region. Calling frequencies should be used only to make initial contact and then vacated as soon as possible. The calling frequencies are 50.110 MHz for international DX only, and 50.200 MHz for all other operation.

The following spot frequencies are recommended for digital DX operation using SSB-based modes:

50.220	Weak signal modes with bandwidths below 100 Hz, e.g. PSK and slow CW
50.225	Weak signal modes with bandwidths up to 500 Hz, e.g. MFSK, JT44 and similar
50.230	High speed meteor scatter modes with bandwidths up to 3 kHz, e.g. FSK441

Note 2: Beacons
The segment 50.000 – 50.080 MHz is reserved for international beacons. All 52 MHz beacons have now closed and migrated to 50 MHz. To reduce overcrowding in the lower end of the band, the following frequencies have been adopted for Australian beacons:

For call areas VK1, VK2, VK3, VK4, and VK7:	50.280 - 50.299 MHz.
For call areas VK5, VK6, VK8, VK9 and VK0:	50.300 - 50.320 MHz.

Frequencies up to 50.400 MHz have been reserved for future beacons. The beacon segments should be kept clear of other transmissions. Note however that the internationally accepted frequency for stations using WSPR mode is 50.293 MHz (indicated dial frequency using USB). This corresponds to the WSPR signal actually occupying 50.2944 - 50.2946 MHz.

Note 3: FM Simplex
Channel spacing is 25 kHz. Channels reserved for special purposes should be kept clear of other operation.

Note 4: Repeaters
The repeater split is 1 MHz (negative offset) and the channel spacing is 25 kHz. Seven repeater channels are reserved for re-use in the following call areas:

52.750 / 53.750 - VK5/8	52.800 / 53.800 - VK6
52.825 / 53.825 - VK7	52.850 / 53.850 - VK2
52.900 / 53.900 - VK3	52.950 / 53.950 - VK4

The remaining channels are available for use in any call area. Repeater channels are co-ordinated nationally to reduce the possibility of interstate sporadic E interference.

Notes for the 80 - 10 metre bands – continued from page 145

Note 5: FM Repeaters
The standard repeater input frequencies are 29.52, 29.54, 29.56 and 29.58 MHz. Some overseas repeaters operate on 10 kHz spaced channels. Repeater offset is 100 kHz. Further details on repeater planning and frequency allocations are available from the Technical Advisory Committee.

HF bands: further information

Digital voice modes:
There are very few calling frequencies on the HF bands, because we can be certain that every frequency we may wish to pick will be occupied by regular activity at various times. However it can be noted that the following frequencies are used regularly for digital voice modes in Regions I and II:
3.630, 7.070, 14.130, 18.150, 21.180, and 28.330 MHz.

Please note the changes which have been adopted for frequencies between 144.700 and 145.800 MHz. These changes include rearrangement of simplex channels and the provision of extra repeater allocations for use in cases where none of the regular channels is available.

Note 1: Narrow Band Modes
This segment is reserved for modes such as CW, digital modes and SSB with bandwidths up to 4 kHz. Weak signal operation has absolute priority. Calling frequencies should be used only to make initial contact and then vacated as soon as possible. Please avoid any terrestrial operation within the EME segment.

The following spot frequencies are recommended for digital DX operation using SSB-based modes:

144.220 / .320	Weak signal modes with bandwidths below 100 Hz, e.g. PSK and slow CW
144.225 / .325	Weak signal modes with bandwidths up to 500 Hz, e.g. MFSK, JT44 and similar
144.230 / .330	High speed meteor scatter modes with bandwidths up to 3 kHz, e.g. FSK441

Note that the segment 144.110 – 144.160 MHz is also used in some countries for international digital mode EME operation.

The band 144.3 - 144.5 MHz is not an IARU recognised satellite band, however some frequencies in this segment may be used at times for space communications.

Note 2: Beacons
Beacon frequencies are allocated on a call area basis, e.g. VK1: 144.410 - 144.419, VK2: 144.420 - 144.429 etc. Beacon frequency spacing is 2 kHz. The beacon segment should be kept clear of other transmissions, but note that the internationally recognised frequency for WSPR mode is 144.4885 MHz (indicated dial frequency using USB). This corresponds to the WSPR signals actually occupying 144.4899 - 144.4901 MHz.

Note 3: Amateur Satellites
The satellite segment should be kept clear of all terrestrial operation.

Note 4: Simplex Segments
Any permitted mode and bandwidth may be used in these segments. FM channel spacing is 25 kHz. D-Star and other digital channel spacing is 12.5 or 25 kHz. Channels reserved for special purposes should be kept clear of other operation. For APCO P25 digital voice, Network Access Code (NAC) – 293.

Note 5: Repeaters
Channel spacing is 25 kHz for repeaters occupying 16 kHz bandwidth, or 12.5 kHz wherever possible for repeaters occupying 10.1 kHz bandwidth. Transmit – receive offset is 600 kHz, but 1.6 MHz offset may be used in the 147 MHz segment.

The alternative repeater input segment 145.400-145.800 (-1.6 MHz offset) and the repeater outputs in the 144.925-145.050 segment will only be allocated when no standard 600 kHz offset channels above 146 MHz are available.

The following channels are reserved for WICEN repeaters:

147.175	(all states)
147.125, 147.150	(NSW, Queensland)
146.925, 147.300	(Victoria)

Note 6: Repeater Linking
Our licence conditions require tone access for repeaters that are linked to repeaters in certain other bands, to prevent transmissions from being relayed on frequencies that the operators are not entitled to use. CTCSS is also used to activate selective linking or for interference protection.

The following CTCSS tones have been adopted for repeater access:

91.5 Hz:	For use with repeaters fitted with CTCSS for interference protection.
141.3 or 146.2 Hz:	To activate links to repeaters on other VHF/UHF bands.
85.4 Hz:	To activate links to other bands that some operators are not permitted to use.

The previously recommended 123 Hz tone is no longer recommended for future repeaters due to problems with false detecting.

Note 7: New band plan implementation
Existing legacy repeater, IRLP and AX25 licences allocated prior to September 2015 may remain on their existing frequencies until the licensees choose to initiate a frequency change. Some long established special purpose simplex frequencies (e.g. ARDF) may also need to remain for some time.

UHF and above bands

Please note the band plan changes which have been adopted for the purpose of overcoming interference problems caused by LIPD ("Low Interference Potential" devices in the band 433.050 - 434.790 MHz. These changes include rearrangement of simplex channels and the creation of a new repeater input segment.

9 cm band – Advanced licensees only

NOTE: From July 2015, operation on frequencies between 3400 and 3575 MHz is prohibited in many parts of Australia (basically all major population centres). However, operation is still permitted in country and remote areas. For full details, please refer to the latest ACMA Amateur Licence Conditions Determination.

The main impact is on the Narrow Band Modes segment. To avoid any confusion about where operation should take place, it is recommended that all weak signal activity should move to 3398 MHz.

Note 1: Narrow Band Modes
This segment is reserved for modes such as CW, digital modes and SSB with bandwidths up to 4 kHz. Weak signal operation has absolute priority. Calling frequencies should be used only to make initial contact and then vacated as soon as possible. Please avoid any terrestrial operation within the EME segment. The "Digital DX modes" segment includes recommended spot frequencies for SSB-based digital modes, on the same pattern as in Note 1 of the 2 metre band plan. The Experimental segment is reserved for specialised experimental use, including possible future linear translators.

Note 2: Beacons
Beacon frequencies are allocated on a call area basis, e.g. VK1: 5760.410 - 5760.419, VK2: 5760.420 - 5760.429 etc. Beacon frequency spacing is 2 kHz. The beacon segment should be kept clear of other transmissions.

Note 3: Amateur Satellites
The satellite segments should be kept clear of all terrestrial operation.

Note 4: FM Simplex
Recommended channel spacing is 100 kHz. Channels reserved for special purposes should be kept clear of other operation. The segments at 5672 and 5673 MHz are reserved for possible future use.

Note 5: Wideband Modes
These segments are for wideband simplex operation or duplex links. Suggested uses are:

ATV (channels 1, 4 or 7):

FM or DVB	Maximum bandwidth 20 MHz, centred on the channel midpoint
DVB	Maximum bandwidth 10 MHz, centred 5 MHz above or below the channel midpoint

Recommended use for duplex links is channel 1 input and channel 7 output.

Data or Voice: Recommended channel spacing is 100 kHz, or 1 MHz for high speed data, excluding upper and lower segment edges. Duplex offset is 70 MHz.
